

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Saturday 15 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Bright or sunny spells and showers for most.

Today:
Areas of rain over central parts pushing north and turning increasingly showers over northern England, Northern Ireland and Scotland during afternoon. Across southern UK, heavy showers and isolated thunderstorms with a chance of hail. Rain and drizzle affecting Shetland later.

Tonight:
Cloudy with patchy drizzle across Northern Isles. Showers in Northern Ireland and Scotland fading with some clear spells. Rain and showers elsewhere becoming confined to north and west.

Sunday:
Scattered showers and thunderstorms developing nationwide, slow-moving across Wales and central England whilst generally lighter and more isolated across Scotland. Breezy in the far south.

Outlook for Monday to Wednesday:
Showers for many, heaviest in the Central and Eastern areas Monday, with hail and thunder. Fewer showers for Tuesday and Wednesday, heaviest (maybe thundery) mainly in the south. Remaining cool.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.